DEDICATION

Grace E. Allen

Grace E. Allan graduated from Leadville High School and attended Greeley College. From 1921 to 1946, Mrs. Allan taught in the schools around the Glenwood area, among them the well-known Red School House at Cattle Creek and the old school at Cardiff. Six years she spent at New Castle. In 1947 she began teaching in Glenwood, where she remained for twelve years until her retirement in 1959. Today she is faithfully filling in as a substitute teacher whenever she is needed. For more than 35 years of service and for her devotion and her interest in all youth, we dedicate the 1964 Yampah to Grace E. Allan.

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

See the ball, boys and girls?

The ball is big.

The ball is crystal.

The ball is magic.

Look into the big crystal, magic ball.

See the future.

As the mist in the crystal ball swirls and begins to clear, we see a striking figure in tie and tails bowing before a great audience. The man is John Naylor, now the Director of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Sharing fame with John are Ralph Dunsdon, Gary Hollenbaugh and Roger Hostettler, musicians with the Philharmonic who have worked their way to the top of the music world since graduating from G.S.H.S. in 1964.

Looking lower into the swirling mist, we can discern the smudged faces of Darwin Raymond, Dave Mathewson, Floyd White, Danny Williams, and Don Stroh. They stand beside their sleek machines preparing to drive in the 1977 running of the Indianapolis 500. Shari Sanders, the queen of the event, is circling the track in her convertible, with her attendants Jeanette Hall and Judy Bartels. All three enjoy life on New York's Fifth Avenue, when they are home.

Coming into the center are the bright lights and cameras of a 20th Century Fox movie outfit; the cameras are focused on Steve Mincer as the leading actor in the new production of GJLLIVER'S TRAVELS. With him in the cast are Steve Beattie and Marsha Jones as the giant king and queen of Brobdingnag.

A blinding flash changes the scene to the 1976 summer Olympics at Rome, Italy. A sleek, tan form plummets from a high board to a great swimming pool. It is Judy Allan, the women's high-diving champion of the world. Then we go to watch Tom Hitt, Dan Bachman, Steve Worrel and Rick Schenkelberg helping the U.S. Olympic basketball team defeat Russia. Representing the U.S. in other track and field events are Phil Datema and Keith Hansen. Suddenly darkness comes; then a spotlight. We read a sign--the "Ron Garrison Show." Ron, the country's foremost comedian, is entertaining such stars as the comedy team of Ken Orton and R. D. Keithley; foremost vocalists Barbara Lorenz and Dianne Baker; John Bukowich, as Mr. America; Dennis Rozman, famous trumpeter; four of America's most outstanding amateur skiers--Linda Wagaman, Cookie Werking, Joyce Brethower, and Nancy Lewis.

The ball swirls dizzily, then slows down. We see Claire Isaacson and Rick Hauk, in Sweden, co-winners of the Nobel Prize for Literature. Then at Rome's Worlds Fair, appear America's four top-most fashion designers; Dot Wilcox, Roz Toniolli, Sandy Hopper, and Claudia Doose. Mila Earnest and Sally Brown have quit playing Route 66 long enough to fly over. Donna Baseley and Sharon Jerosz are with them. We spot Dave Jenkins and Neil Tibbetts, chief construction engineers for the fair.

The turning ball takes us to Cape Kennedy for a glimpse of the First Woman to become President of the United States, Sharon Talley. She is on hand to witness the ascent of Gail Murdock to the moon. Gail will join Dee Cerise, the first U.S. lady astronaut. Directing the countdown is Professor Tom Foote, along with Marsha Dean, who is now head of the Armed Forces.

Scanning the country in the crystal ball, we see Steve Dunham, player for the Spanish Flamenco Dancers; Ruby Cordray, Cheryl Sloss, and Sandy Heuschkel, professors at Colorado University; Jerry Shellman, owner of the largest chain of food markets in the U.S.; Sue Hughes, general manager of General Mills; Yvonne Mayfield and Karen Bagett, millionairesses from their profits from "Karen Mayfield" beauty salons; Billie Ann Mangnall, owner of fourteen Rexall Drug Stores; and Ellouise Rood, her soda-fountain manager.

In Washington we see Charlotte Blanc and Susan Smith, both undercover agents for the F.B.I.; in New York, Ralph Cruz as Captain of the 17th Precinct; Helen Paterson, editor of the Wall Street Journal; Judy Westlake, the proud mother of three sets of twins and two sets of quintuplets; Diane Thrall and Susan Simecka; partners and owners of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; and Donna Bellm, Iola Smallwood, and Carmen Jaurgui, all fashion designers for Ladies Home Journal.

The ball speeds up.

It goes faster and faster and faster.

It is disappearing--

Ball gone --- All gone.
